RP claimed she put the pill bottle, which she just refilled and contained approximately 90 pills, in her purse before leaving her house for work. RP put her purse in her unsecured locker at work and went about her day. When the RP attempted to take her evening dose of medication at her house later that night, she discovered the pill bottle was not in her purse. RP was certain she did not misplace the bottle and stated she looked around her house for it. RP said the business was conducting a review of surveillance at her request, and she would contact me if anything was learned from the footage. RP had no suspects in mind and wanted the incident documented in case someone else was found with her medication. RP said she "didn't want any trouble" if the pills were found in someone else's possession. RP could not say that the pills were stolen from her purse, but she suspects that is what happened. I spoke to Alex at Togos, who informed me the security system monitor was not working at the moment, but a review would be made once it was functioning. Summary: RP is attempting a civil probate case pertaining to his father's estate, which was divided and distributed in 1973. RP claimed the State Attorney General had already pled guilty, even though there was not a trial. RP claimed a clerk at the Tuolumne County Courthouse agreed with him that the situation was fraud, and suggested he contact the TCSO to file a report. RP also said he had an asbestos exposure case in the works. According to the RP, the estate in question was worth "13 hundred million dollars" and he needed his property back. I informed the RP that estate probate issues were civil matters and he could continue to pursue the matter in a civil court setting. RP informed me I was wrong, the incident was criminal fraud committed against him. RP stated that, having previously committed major fraud, he knew what was fraud and what was not. RP stated he was going to contact another Sheriff's Office for a second opinion, and if he got a different answer he would sue the TCSO. Summary: RP claimed his wife is violating the child custody agreement they have. I spoke previously with the RP's ex, who has the children. Both parties agreed the children were not at risk or in danger at that time. RP stated he would meet me at the Tuolumne CSU with his custody paperwork for review. A review of the paperwork showed the documents are very unclear, but it did state the amendment did not interfere with or nullify any previous orders. I told both the RP and his ex that, because the order was so vague, it needed to be clarified by the court. The RP and his ex agreed that the children would remain with for the weekend and go to school as usual on Monday. The RP planned to file for an emergency hearing on Monday. The RP and his ex were told that, if the court could not fit them in before next weekend, they needed to resume the previous existing custody order until the new one could be clarified. Both agreed.-1665

Occurred on Jack Rabbit Trl, Sonora. Rp in the lobby rptg assault; resp 11-41 refused summary: RP told me he was driving to his property on Jack Rabbit Trail , and his neighbor was driving down the road with her two dogs running in front of the vehicle. RP asked her not to run her dogs on his property, and while they were talking, RSP pulled up and told RP to stop hassling his wife. RP approached RSP's vehicle, and he got out of the car. RSP was cussing while he was exiting the vehicle, and he stood in front of RP for a few seconds before punching him in the mouth with his closed right fist. RP told RSP he was going to call the Sheriff's Office, and RSP told RP that he pushed him first. Then RSP's wife agreed that RP pushed RSP first. RP refused medical treatment. He did have a small cut on the inside of his upper lip, just left of center. Summary: I called RSP, and he told me RP drove by his house very quickly while his wife was up the road turning around. RSP could see RP cornered his wife in a way so she could not drive away. RSP drove up and asked if there was a problem. RP was confrontational, and RSP got out of his vehicle. He did not recall the words said at the time, but he said RP pushed him, so he pushed RP back. RSP said when he pushed RP, his open hand did hit RP in the mouth. RSP denied punching RP and claimed he only pushed him because RP pushed him first. RSP claimed his wife saw the whole event.

I told both parties that we would be documenting the incident because it is one person's word against the other. RP asked about RSP running the dogs on the private easement road without leashes. I told RP to consult a civil attorney regarding the use of the easement by the neighbors. I gave RP a case receipt with this incident report number and my contact information. .
